Stacy Levin of BankRI Appointed President of the East Greenwich Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors

PROVIDENCE, R.I. – Stacy Levin, the longtime manager of Bank Rhode Island’s (BankRI) East Greenwich branch, has been appointed president of the East Greenwich Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors. Levin assumed the leadership role at the end of February, and has served on the chamber’s board for five years.

“East Greenwich is my second home – I absolutely love this community and its people, and am eager to serve and further build upon the great resource that our chamber represents,” said Levin, who lives in Cranston. “Especially now as we begin to emerge from such unprecedented times, we have an opportunity to be even greater advocates for the local businesses that help to make this town thrive.”

For more than 90 years, the East Greenwich Chamber has worked to support and showcase the culture of its local civic and business communities. Among the events the chamber’s introduced that have since become traditions include the Main Street Strolls, East Greenwich Restaurant Week, and Welcome to East Greenwich Guide. During the pandemic, it offered a range of resources, seminars, and grants to help area businesses adapt and innovate in ways never before imagined.

“Seeing up close the ways our members, our staff and neighbors... how everyone pulled together on behalf of local business was so powerful. We are here as a voice for the businesses of East Greenwich, and I’m excited for what lies ahead.”
